

GLOOM PREVAILS IN NAZI QUARTERS; NOTHING BUT GERMAN REVERSES REPORTED FROM TWO OF THE FRONTS

Hitler's Pessimistic Speech From Munich Could Not Have But Added to Spirit of Down-heartedness — Germans Slowly But Surely Being Pushed Back Toward Rome.

By International News Service

Gloom prevailed in Nazi quarters today as reports from the Russian and Italian battlefronts continued to tell of nothing but German reverses, or German retreats in the face of battering from United Nations forces.

Adolf Hitler's pessimistic speech from Munich could not have but added to the spirit of down-heartedness, and in view of this feeling a dispatch to neutral Sweden today took on a special significance.

A correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported that plans have been completed for a four-man government to take over control of the Reich in case Hitler should die.

These four men, selected at a recent meeting of Nazi Gauleiters at Hitler's headquarters, were named as Marshal Hermann Goering, Propaganda Minister Josef Goebbels, Minister of the Interior Heinrich Himmler, and Reichsleiter Martin Bormann.

Under the plan, Tubby Goering will become head of the state should Hitler die, and with his three colleagues take over all the powers and duties which Hitler now wields with such catastrophic intuition. In case Goering too should die a new governmental head will be chosen from the three remaining Nazi party big-shots.

The dispatch to Stockholm said there is no immediate fear for the German Fuehrer's health at present, although he has long been under terrible strain due to the progress of the war. The correspondent said this was just a normal preparation for any possible eventual growth of the mysterious flight to England two years ago of Rudolf Hess, one of the original successors Hitler had designated himself.

But those who heard Hitler's speech yesterday noticed something more than a strain in the Nazi leader's voice as he spoke. He didn't sound like the old, fire-eating Hitler of the days of Poland and Austria. His words still were the fanatical, hateful, venomous words of the man who plunged the whole world into chaos. But his voice was that of a sick, weary, frightened panderer.

The Nazi Fuehrer long has admitted making important military decisions according to his "intuition." Many United Nations observers wondered today whether this same intuition could be responsible for his decision to choose his own successors at this particular time when things look darkest for the blood-thirsty military monster he created.

Just how dark things must look in Berlin can be judged from today's Moscow communique, which told of the slaughter of more than 15,000 Nazi soldiers and the capture of 6,200 more at Kiev. The battle in which the Red Army recaptured Kiev lasted less than four days, the Russian high command said—from Nov. 3 to the early hours of Nov. 6. Then the Germans retreated in such panic that they left their thousands of dead buried on the battlefield. And behind them they left material amounting to astronomical figures which the Russians proceeded to capture or destroy.

Today in the Ukrainian sector Soviet forces are at least 45 miles beyond Kiev, hammering toward the Romanian frontier. To the north other Russian divisions slashed out from Nevel toward the borders of Latvia and Lithuania in an attempt to encircle the countless thousands of Nazis in the Leningrad area.

Berlin dispatches said the Soviets had launched a tremendous new offensive from Nevel, while from Switzerland came reports that the German high command has ordered a general retreat from the Leningrad area to Estonia to escape the possibility of the entrapment planned by Moscow.

In Italy, too, the Germans were slowly but surely being forced back toward Rome by the unceasing hammering of the Anglo-American-Canadian Fifth and Eighth Armies.

The Fifth Army today was locked in a fierce battle for Mignano, on the western sector of the battlefront, while Eighth Army units marked considerable gains in the sector along the Adriatic coast. The left wing of the Fifth Army was drawn up on the south bank of the Grigliano River, poised for the final drive on the powerful fortress at Gaeta.

It is possible that Gaeta already may have fallen into Allied hands, although no official announcement has yet been made to that effect. However, the Nazi-controlled Rome radio stated that systematic destruction of the Gaeta installations.

FEW TICKETS AVAILABLE FOR "THIS IS THE ARMY"

Tickets Will Go On Sale Tomorrow Evening at Grand Theatre

ONLY ONE SHOWING

There are a limited number of tickets available for sale for the Bristol Premier of "This is the Army" which is to be given at the Grand Theatre tomorrow evening. These tickets are for sale at $1.10 each. The tickets will be placed on sale at the theatre box office tomorrow night.

The receipts, exclusive of necessary expenses, are to go to the Army Relief Association and the affair is being sponsored by the Bracken Post, American Legion.

Most of the tickets have been sold through the various industries of Bristol and vicinity and it is expected that there will be a large crowd in attendance. It is thought that every family having a boy or a girl in the service will want to aid this worthy cause and will purchase a ticket for the opening night.

There will be but one showing and it will start at 8.15.

Three hundred and fifty United States soldiers comprise the cast of the picture, which is based on the show which Irving Berlin wrote and produced the show in the Spring of 1942 at Camp Upton, L. I., and "TITA" opened at the Broadway Theatre, New York City, on July 4, 1942, for a four-week engagement. It ran three months. It could be running there yet. The New York engagement ended Sept. 26, 1942, and a nation-wide tour began in Washington. Since then, the show played in Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco. It closed in San Francisco February 13, and the unit then reported to Warner Bros' Studio in Burbank.

DR. ED. W. PANGBURN, NAVY HERO, HONORED AT DINNER GIVEN BY MEMBERS OF WASHINGTON CROSSING PARK COMMISSION; GIFT PRESENTED

WASHINGTON CROSSING, Nov. 9—Lt. Commander Edward W. Pangburn, a navy surgeon, and a member of the Washington Crossing Park Commission, was honored at a dinner on Sunday by his fellow-commissioners at the Ferry Inn, here.

Following the dinner at which Dr. Henry W. Turner presided, Dr. R. C. Magill, park superintendent, presented Dr. Pangburn with a beautiful silver identification bracelet, designed and wrought by Dr. Magill.

Accounts of Dr. Pangburn's exceptionally heroic exploits in the service have already been recorded—how he defied death in the Mediterranean to save an army paratrooper who had fallen into the stony Algerian Hills. For the last part of the journey to reach the paratrooper, Dr. Pangburn had to swim some distance carrying a 12-pound medical kit in his teeth.

Once there he performed an emergency hernia operation, and then using a door torn from a nearby house as a stretcher, he and another man carried the wounded paratrooper to safety.

Following the dinner, Dr. Pangburn gave a vivid and extremely interesting account of the excellent medical care given in this war to all servicemen. Speaking of the miraculous powers of the sulphur drugs and of blood plasma he stated: "If you could only see how quickly that injection of plasma is given in as short a time as three minutes, and how immediate is the response of color in cheeks and lips of the wounded men, everyone who could would certainly give blood." Dr. Pangburn gave much credit to plasma for the exceptionally small number of fatalities among casualties in this war.

The commissioners attending the dinner were: Dr. Pangburn, Dr. Henry W. Turner, chairman; Mrs. Charles Harper Smith, Emil Menkle, Mrs. Ann Hawkes Hutton, and Dr. R. C. Magill, park superintendent. Mrs. W. C. Arcey, secretary to the superintendent, also attended.

Blizzards Strike Midwest Ahead of Time

By International News Service

Freezing weather and blizzards, striking the Midwest ahead of schedule, left a toll of eight dead today.

Five of the dead were in Minnesota, two in Iowa and one in Wisconsin.

These states, along with Nebraska and North and South Dakota, were hardest hit by winter weather's early advent.

In some areas highways were blocked by snowdrifts, bus and train schedules were disrupted, trolley cars were stalled, and some schools were closed.

Duluth, Minn., reported 14 inches of snow. Aberdeen, S. D., a foot, and unofficial reports said a foot and a half of snow fell at Spirit Lake, Ia.

The snow storm raged three days at Sioux City, Ia., where traffic was badly disrupted and plows for some time were unable to clear the trolley tracks.

The Iowa state engineer's office was making valiant efforts to keep main highways open, but frequently the snow was blown in drifts back onto the road soon after the plows passed by.

Bus service temporarily was canceled on some routes in Iowa and a number of the rural schools closed until travel difficulties eased. Trains ran several hours late in some sections.

Snow was seven to 10 inches deep in eastern and northeastern Nebraska where many schools were closed. Fifty men and women and 15 children, including five babies, were marooned many hours at a filling station in eastern Nebraska before they were rescued.

Passengers in four buses stalled on a Nebraska highway kept warm from the bus heaters until the gas ran out then went to nearby farm houses. Snowplows and other equipment eventually liberated the buses.

With near blizzard weather predicted for northern Minnesota today, residents feared the storm might become as severe as the 1940 Armistice Day blizzard in which 131 persons lost their lives and temperatures dropped to 6 below zero.

Bus and airline travel there was at a standstill and trains were operating behind schedule. Rural schools all over the state were closed. Grade schools in St. Paul and Minneapolis were open only a half day yesterday.

Many hunters were marooned by the storm. Telephone and telegraph lines were down and for some time radio communication was the only system available at some points.

Light snows were reported in Wisconsin and Missouri. Chicago had light flurries and more were cast for today.

Schools Observing Education Week Here

This is American Education Week and it is noted that education for victory is a vital purpose of the schools today. Winning the war is all important. To this end the schools have converted their programs in accordance with the needs of the armed forces, of industry, and of government.

A series of articles written by Bristol high school students are being published in connection with the observance of American Education Week.

EDUCATION FOR WORK

By Jean Bielecki, 9-c-2

"I'm in big money now!" Every one of us hears this quotation coming from a great number of our youth. Our town as well as all the other towns in the forty-eight states may be "booming" now, but this won't last forever, so why not get an education now and learn as much as you can for later years to come?

Rosie doesn't have to be a genius in history, Latin and geography if she wants to be a riveter, but what is she going to do when riveting days come to an end? Yes, you are right. Rosie should have taken the opportunity offered her when she was in school. Home Economics could have developed Rosie into a handy housekeeper. When the boys come home again many of them may be wounded; there will be a necessity for nurses. Of course Rosie could have been an aide if she had studied the Nurses Aide Course. But all Rosie wanted to do was rivet!

We must not forget that we are still living in America and not in Germany where youth is compelled to forfeit necessary studies to save that which they consider a wonderful country. So let us all see to it that as long as our country can do without the full-time help of youth in speeding production, we, the youth, take advantage of the education that we are able to secure, so that when we are called upon to "pitch in," we will be able to carry out our duties and responsibilities and so inevitably be a profit to our country.

Warns England Still Faces Threat of All-Out Assault

London—Nazi Germany may crumble under the Russian offensive and Allied air attack, but England still faces threats of all-out assault or even attempted invasion before the "climax" of the European war is reached in 1944, Prime Minister Winston Churchill said today.

Speaking as honor guest at the annual Lord Mayor's banquet, Churchill extolled the Russian onslaught which for Hitlerism and Prussian military might "may well prove mortal."

His speech, crisscrossed with confidence, not only in eventual victory, but in Britain's physical and spiritual ability to sustain whatever staggering reprisals Adolf Hitler may be planning. The Prime Minister was forthright in warning that enormous losses will accompany the Allied invasion of Europe from the west.

Explosion at Raritan Arsenal

Metuchen, N. J.—A series of tremendous explosions, audible for miles around, occurred today at the huge Raritan Arsenal, three miles from Metuchen. Details of the blasts and their effect on the arsenal, an army manufacturing and shell-loading plant, were not immediately available. In New York the Second Service Command announced the blast commenced at 10 a. m., but greatly increased by 10.45 a. m.

The Second Service Command reported: "At 10 a. m., at the Raritan Arsenal, a magazine containing French ammunition brought back from overseas exploded. The magazine and two freight cars were destroyed. By 10.45 the explosion had increased greatly. The magazine walls were holding, however, it appeared that the damage would be confined to the single magazine. So far no one has been reported killed, and one man was burned, although not badly. Damage is estimated at $50,000."

Mrs. Sydney Scott Dies; Funeral To Be Thursday

Mrs. Margaret Ellen Scott, wife of Sydney E. Scott, 349 Harry Place, died at her home early this morning, after a lengthy illness.

Born in New Brunswick, N. J., May 13th, 1895, the deceased was the youngest daughter of the late Thomas P. and Mary Casey, of that city.

Besides her husband, the deceased is survived by four daughters, Dorothy, Margaret, Kathryn and Helen, of Bristol; and a brother, Francis Casey, of New Brunswick, N. J.

The funeral will be held from the W. I. Murphy Estate funeral home, 316 Jefferson avenue, Thursday morning at nine o'clock, with requiem mass at 10 o'clock in St. Mark's Church, of which the deceased was a communicant.

Interment will be in St. Mark's Cemetery. Friends may call at the Murphy funeral home Wednesday evening.

MAY HAVE ALERTS DURING THIS MONTH

Warning Sent Out By State Council of Defense to All County Groups

MAY COME ANYTIME

Warning all State defense groups of the probability of a practice day air raid and a blackout called by the Army during this month, Dr. Ralph Cooper Hutchison, executive director of the State Council of Defense, yesterday re-emphasized the importance of the civilian defense set-up.

In a letter to all defense councils, Dr. Hutchison stressed the importance of preparedness and stated "there is a possibility of two test alerts occurring during the month of November."

"The only notice you will get will be when the warning is flashed into your control centers and the regular program of alerts follows. Please tell your people to be prepared."

"It is suggested that your wardens and others inform their neighbors that the Air Raid Precautions Act is in full effect and that violations occurring during any practice air raid or blackout will make them liable to the penalties in that act."

Recently, the State Defense Council announced that any further alerts in Pennsylvania would be ordered by the Army.

Quoting a portion of Dr. Hutchison's letter:

It is our desire to reiterate in this bulletin the importance of being prepared for unannounced practice air raids and blackouts called by the Army. In all probability there will be one of each in the month of November. The only notice you will get will be when the warning is flashed into your control center and the regular program of alerts follows. Please tell your people to be prepared. It is suggested that your wardens and others inform their neighbors that the Air Raid Precautions Act is in full effect and that violations occurring during any practice air raid or blackout will make them liable to the penalty in that Act of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania.

TWO MORE WELLS TO BE IN USE SOON FOR WATER SUPPLY

Pumps Have Been Secured And Service Will Start Soon

APPROVE AGREEMENT

2/3 of Water Supply Will Then Be Obtained From Artesian Wells

It is anticipated that by December 1st two more artesian wells will be put into service as a source of supply for water for Bristol Borough and the other communities which obtain water from the Bristol Water Department.

Two wells have been in service since early last summer and have proven very satisfactory and have been supplying about one million gallons of water per day. With the additional two wells put into service another million gallons per day will be available. This will be about two-thirds of the daily water consumption now supplied by the borough.

The announcement was made in borough council, last night, by Louis C. Spring, chairman of the water committee. Mr. Spring presented for the approval of council an agreement with the Philadelphia Electric Company for supplying power for the operation of the two additional pumps. The agreement met with approval and a resolution authorizing the proper borough officers to affix their signatures was adopted.

Councilman Thomas Clark, fifth ward, asked that school warning signs be placed at Logan and Pond streets and Pear and Logan streets, as a means of protection of children attending St. Ann's parochial school. The signs were ordered to be placed.

Councilman Conklin inquired about the lights which had been authorized for Green Lane and Benson Place. It was stated that the Philadelphia Electric Company had reported that they were of the opinion that the necessary priorities could be obtained.

Police committee reported 21 arrests during the month of October. Two were turned over to military police, two discharged, nine fined, six held for court, two cases were continued.

Eight street lights were reported out, two doors found unlocked, and 22 lodgers given shelter. Police radio car answered 132 alarms.

William Warner was chosen president pro tem.

Child Overcome by Fumes May Need Skin Grafting

One of a family of three who suffered from coal gas fumes at Croydon, yesterday morning, remains in bed, and a second is being treated for burns.

George Smith, although improving, is still in bed at the home of his parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Wieser, Dorrance street; and his daughter, Gertrude, 10, is being treated for third degree burns suffered when she apparently fell during the period she was partially overcome, and remained inert for a time over a heater register. Both of her legs were burned, but she has recovered nicely from effects of the fumes, it is stated. Skin grafting may be a necessity for the child, it is stated.

Mrs. Smith is improved and able to be about the house.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

It's "Not Quite Honest"

Washington, Nov. 6. OF THE officially connected adherents of the Roosevelt Administration who can be classified as "real Roosevelt men," Mr. Stephen Early, the President's secretary, stands pretty close to the top. Irrespective of their political feelings and affiliations, Mr. Early has the regard and respect of more people—and to a greater extent—than any of the others.

UNDOUBTEDLY, the President has some admirable qualities, but taste in friends is not one of them. In fact, his choice of intimates is one of the things that most appalls those who know them. Surveying his selections and grasping the fact that these are the men who not only have his ear, his confidence and his personal liking but help form his judgments, it is easier to understand some of the lopsided policies and illogical performances that have emanated from what is so often called the "inner circle."

THEY ARE not—these "close friends" of the President—vicious or crooked. Though most of them are not averse to capitalizing their closeness to the throne, they are not a sinister group at all. But, take them altogether and they constitute what, perhaps, is the most abject set of bootlickers and sycophants ever gathered around a White House occupant. There are some exceptions. One is former Justice James F. Byrnes; the other is Mr. Early. Mr. Byrnes may be the subject for another column; this one is devoted to Mr. Early.

HE IS an exception because he has character, common sense and capacity; because, too, while completely loyal to his Chief (loyal, in Continued On Page Two

FRANKLIN DEBUNKED

Prof. Alexander G. McAdie, former professor of meteorology at Harvard University and for 18 years director of Blue Hills Observatory, won fame in many fields. He was an astronomer as well as a meteorologist, and a poet and controversialist in addition. Professor McAdie served as a lieutenant commander in the Navy in the First World War and acted as aerographic officer overseas in 1918. His interest in the effect of weather on the outcome of great battles spurred the study of meteorology by military men and his contributions to modern weather forecasting so widely and successfully used by airmen today were many.

The death of Professor McAdie at the age of eighty recalls that he caused a nation-wide sensation in 1924 when, in delivering an address at Lowell Institute, Boston, he characterized as a myth Benjamin Franklin's famous kite experiment during a thunderstorm. Professor McAdie said that a coroner's jury would have been holding an inquest over Franklin's body the next day if he had performed the experiment as popular history has it.

He contended there was no authentic record to show whether Franklin had actually performed the experiment or had merely suggested it, but if Franklin flew a kite at all he did not fly it during a thunderstorm, or it would have killed him. It need not be added that Professor McAdie's theory stirred up a thunderstorm of controversy.

THE SCORE LENGTHENS

Recent developments in Spain have added considerably to the mystery of what goes on inside the head of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the half-pint Mussolini of Madrid. First, Franco's government extended congratulations to the puppet Japanese regime in the Philippines. Now it is disclosed that the Franco government has concluded a trade agreement with the rump Italian "government" headed by what is left of Balbo's Ben.

At a time when Allied solidarity is assured and Allied military power is rapidly nearing its peak, the Franco government's excursions into diplomacy of such a nature cast grave doubts on its powers of ratification. But whatever the explanation, the fact of the actions remains.

The State Department declines to discuss the situation beyond the statement that the Franco government's pro-Japanese gesture is being given serious consideration and that the deal with Mussolini also has been noted.

It is to be hoped that the State Department's notes on the subject are copious and detailed, because Franco's reckoning will come due one of these days and no item should be omitted from the bill.

Predictions that a shortage in cigarettes is developing will help to create one unless the people have changed greatly in recent weeks.

"THAT KEITH WOMAN" by PHYLLIS MOORE GALLAGHER

SYNOPSIS

Letty Randolph, society reporter, persuaded distraught Pamela Keith not to cancel her daughter Sandra's debut, scheduled for that afternoon. "That Keith woman," as Letty's mother termed her, had long figured sensationally in the news. At 19, her elopement with Wayne Courtney, young medical student, was promptly annulled by her parents. Later, in South America, she met wealthy Richard Keith, who divorced his wife, Gladys Newcomb Keith, so he could marry Pam. Richard was killed in an automobile accident soon after their daughter Sandra's birth. Now, twenty years later, after many romantic interludes, Pam was engaged to likable Luke Cramer, though everyone had expected he would marry Gladys, Richard Keith's ex-wife. Letty, en route to Sandra's party, took a short cut through the hedge to the Keith mansion, which adjoined her hotel. She observed the fear in Pam's eyes as she welcomed her guests, while Sandra seemed angry, especially when she greeted Victor Corliss, with whom she was in love. Letty was thrilled when Countess Fanella Castagna presented handsome Peter Gibson, but she bristled when he told her he had crashed the party. Later, at a small dinner party, Letty saw that Pam had surrounded herself with the most antagonistic people: Elsie Eustace and her husband Marvin, whose name had been linked romantically with Pam's; Doctor Wayne Courtney, her first husband, recently returned to Washington after fifteen years abroad; Countess Castagna, whose biography had slurred Pam; supercilious Earle Pines; and Gladys Newcomb, from whom Pam had annexed two men. Letty noticed Reginald, the Keith butler, eyeing Gladys. Sandra had gone on to the club with her deb friends. Pam's frightened manner clung to her, even after Luke Cramer phoned from Philadelphia. Gladys directed a malevolent look at her hostess, as Pam explained that Luke was a victim of influenza. Letty, anxious to write her story of Sandra's debut, left shortly before ten o'clock. Near the opening in the hedge, she saw a silhouette figure creeping stealthily toward the rear of Pam's house. Letty was attacked by the prowler, but escaped after biting his neck. Later, she changed her torn gown and set out for Pam's house. Horrified, she discovered Pam's body lying near the hedge. Peter Gibson, who was not present at the dinner, was among the first to answer Letty's hysterical screams. In the confusion which followed, Gladys Newcomb remarked about Letty's change of dress. Letty is puzzled when Peter refuses to explain his presence. Going back to the hotel, Peter and Letty overhear Sandra and Victor Corliss in a heated quarrel. Sandra demands that Victor explain why he left her party at the club. Victor insists he can't divulge why, or where, he went, adding, "Your mother can't stop us from marrying, now." At the hotel, Peter promises to wait while Letty phones her paper, but when she emerges he still retains his sense of humor and his sense of proportion. And he is singularly free from the small malice and vindictiveness that seem congenial among so many of his colleagues. Absolutely on the level, a born truth teller and a firm friend, "Steve" Early likes no man's boots. One would certainly not expect the grandson of Gen. Jubal Early to belong to that brigade. Nor has Mr. Early any trace of head swelling. In brief, so far as the "inner circle" is concerned, he is practically unique and it is something of a puzzle to those who know the others as to how Mr. Early got in and how he stays in.

Aviation Cadet John E. Cherubini son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Cherubini, Mulberry street, has arried Richard Keith, years ago! Naturally Gladys' loathing had increased in intensity when Pamela had come along and taken Luke Cramer away from her. You might bear up under a woman taking one man from you, but when she does it again, it's hard to take. And looking at Gladys I wondered if she had taken it—or if she'd murdered Pam!

Earle Pines was lounging in a violently red chair, lost behind the smoke-screen of his pipe. I crossed in front of him, chose a Sheraton chair alongside the south wall, sat down and tried to think. . . . Where had Peter Gibson gone? Had he seen the flat-footed representative of the law bearing down on me, and taken it on the lam? Why? Didn't he want any oral horseplay with brass-boned gentlemen?

Who was the prowler? Anyone in this room? Could the prowler have been a woman? Someone heavy and powerful . . . well, the Countess? Indeed, she might have muscles packed monstrously under her 210 pounds. But how could the prowler have been one of these dinner guests? Still, when I'd gone upstairs to get my wrap I might have spent more time than I realized looking for my evening bag. Someone might have slipped out on the grounds ahead of me. . . . Dinner was completely over when I'd come down, Pamela was in the drawing room. . . . Then I wondered if anyone had thought to notify Luke Cramer of his fiancée's tragic death. Pamela had had a reservation on the midnight plane to go to Luke. He was probably expecting her, waiting for her. . . . If this hideous crime hadn't occurred, Pam would have been in Philadelphia by now. Someone ought to notify Luke, I thought. . . . so why not me? I told the officer what was on my mind, and presently I put in the call.

It was the hardest thing I'd ever done, telling Luke about Pamela. "Oh, no, Letty," he said over the telephone and, though over a hundred miles separated us and it wasn't television I was using, I could visualize the disbelief in Luke's dark eyes, the agony on his slender, handsome face. . . . When I went back to my chair, I was trembling all over, and a little sick at heart.

I was grateful that Reginald was passing coffee, and when he got to me I grabbed my cup and downed the hot liquid quickly. Then I asked for another cup and, as Reginald poured it, I got a really good look at him. His pupils were dilated, and there was a muscle jerking tensely along the line of his jaw. I was still studying him as he moved on to Gladys Newcomb. His face changed subtly and I was as sure as I am that Hitler is doomed that Reginald was trying to give Gladys some kind of a message. He seemed to expect Gladys to say something too, but I had a feeling she couldn't trust her voice in that moment. She just looked away from Reginald, fastened her eyes on her coffee—and did not look up again.

in contrast to others of the "palace guard" as was the attitude of former Vice-President John N. Garner toward an offer of a large sum for a weekly radio talk back in the first Roosevelt term. The offer came at a time when various persons even closer than secretaries to the President were cashing in on their closeness. In rejecting the offer, Mr. Garner said that it was too much money to pay Jack Garner, and no one had enough money to buy the Vice-President. The fact that Mr. Early feels that this ghost writing game is "not quite honest" and won't do it is an added reason for the esteem in which he is held.

Lillie Gorton Is Listed In College "Who's Who"

ALLENTOWN, Nov. 9.—Miss Lillie Gorton, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Gorton, of Mill street, Bristol, who will receive her A. B. degree from Cedar Crest College in June, is among those students who will be listed in the 1943-44 issue of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." The book will be released in April.

This publication is made possible through the cooperation of over 600 American universities and colleges. It is the only means of national recognition for graduates which is devoid of politics, fees, and dues. Several students from accredited colleges are selected each year, by an unprejudiced committee, for their biographies to appear in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." These books are placed in the hands of hundreds of companies and others who annually recruit students for employment.

Miss Gorton is the efficient president of the Ophelo Service Club, which is composed of members of the junior and senior classes who exhibit a genuine spirit of co-operation for the welfare of the college in general. This group sponsors annually Homecoming Day for alumnae in the fall and Open House in the spring to which senior high school girls from Pennsylvania, New York, and New Jersey are invited. Other activities of Miss Gorton include: House president of one of the large dormitories, student guide to freshman girls, and membership in the Tabard Literary Society, Delphi High Honor Club, College Choir, and Si-Oui-Ya International Club.

was moving in by landing barge at Oran, on the North African coast. The great majority of the men with him lost their lives.

Nine hundred and forty garments, all ready for distribution among a number of institutions, were on display, Thursday, at the annual meeting of the Brownsburg branch of the Needlework Guild in the Baptist Church, at Wycombe. About the same number of articles were contributed last year. Cash contributions, which amounted to $21.60, were in excess of those last year.
A brief business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Albert J. Thompson, and the music was in charge of Miss Anna Pickcock, who also rendered an instrumental number.
Some of the articles on display will be forwarded to the county probation officer, Miss Gertrude Bright, to be placed in the homes of needy families.

David A. Clarke, 21, son of Mr.

and Mrs. Clarke, Route 1, Doylestown, received his commission as Ensign in the U. S. Naval Reserve when he graduated recently from the Naval Training School for midshipmen, Northwestern University, Chicago, Ill. His completed three-month course consisted of navigation, seamanship and gunnery. The newly commissioned Ensign will now see action with the fleet as a deck officer.
Another Doylestown man, Donald V. Chubb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. C. Chubb, was commissioned a second lieutenant and received his wings at graduation exercises from the twin-engine flying school at George Field, Lawrenceville, Ill. Home on leave of absence for about ten days, Lt. Chubb will report at Salt Lake City, Utah, to receive training in the piloting of B-25 Mitchell bombers.

has begun and admitted that German evacuation was imminent. Hitler's Axis mate in the Pacific likewise had very little news to rejoice over today as the Allied campaign continued unabated to thwart Japanese efforts to reinforce their bomb-battered shell-plastered Southwest Pacific bases.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced destruction of 63 more Japanese cargo ships, a corvette and two barges. Attacks on a Japanese heavy cruiser and two destroyers also were reported.
Tokyo radio broadcast a communique claiming that a score of Allied battleships, cruisers, destroyers and transports had been sunk or damaged, in a battle going on since yesterday morning south of Bougainville Island in the Solomons. But here was no substantiation of the Japanese claims which, in the past, have been grossly exaggerated.

A SUPER AVIATION FUEL CONCENTRATE

50% more powerful than U. S. standard 100-octane test fuel

One reason for Allied mastery of the skies is the superiority of the fighting fuel that powers our planes.
Millions of gallons are being made every week by Sunoco. This huge quantity and the high quality of our output are made possible largely by Dynafuel, an exclusive development of Sunoco engineers and chemists.

50% More Power than U. S. Standard 100-Octane Test Fuel

Sunoco Dynafuel is more than a gasoline; it's a super aviation fuel concentrate which tests 50% higher in power than U. S. standard 100-octane test fuel! That is because Dynafuel contains a larger percentage of certain ingredients which have extraordinary power-producing qualities.

Increases Quality and Quantity

Dynafuel is never used undiluted, but is blended with gasolines produced by other methods, in order to step up their quality.

The Dynafuel Process also increases quantity—because it utilizes even those portions of the crude which formerly went only into low-grade fuels.

A Triumph of Private Initiative

Dynafuel was developed by Sunoco without government aid or subsidy. The company risked its own capital, its own credit, in order to pay the huge costs of building the plants for its production.
It is through such free play of private initiative that all American progress has been achieved.

Opens Up a New Future for Motorists

Dynafuel is not now available for civilians. Every drop is reserved for military needs. But just imagine what this super fuel will mean to future motor car development! The same processes and equipment which have contributed so importantly to the war may well revolutionize post-war travel, both on the highways and skyways of America.
